Introduction

The mission of the Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women (MCSW) is to provide a permanent, effective voice for women across Massachusetts. The Commission stands for fundamental freedoms, basic human rights and the full enjoyment of life for all women throughout their lives.

In addition, the Commission is empowered to identify and recommend qualified women for appointive positions at all levels of government, including Boards and Commissions. The Commission believes it is imperative that more women participate in the policy and decision-making processes of their state and local governments. Through this involvement, all women's voices will be better heard throughout the Commonwealth.

This publication, which provides a listing of the major Massachusetts state Boards and Commissions, is a special project created to provide women easy access to information about the many opportunities available to them. The goal of the project is to increase women's participation and representation in state government. State Boards and Commissions are a significant component of state government. Members are able to affect public policy, network and access state policy makers, and represent their constituencies and perspectives. The Commission hopes that the creation and wide distribution of this directory will educate and encourage women to seek out appointments and play an active role in their communities and state. This activity will ultimately increase the number of qualified female candidates and further the accountability of state government in fulfilling its responsibility to address women's issues and concerns.

History of the Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women

Law enacted the Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women in May 1998 under Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 3 Section 66. The United Nations' Fourth World Conference on Women held in Beijing in September 1995 inspired the legislation. One result of this conference was the Beijing Platform for Action, which recommended that the state and the federal government support councils, commissions, networks, and other organizations that focus on women's issues. Specifically, the Platform directed state governments to "form and adequately fund Women's Commissions in all states and territories where they do not already exist" (Building on Beijing: United States NGOs Shape a Women's National Action Agenda, published by The Stanley Foundation July 1997).

The Commission consists of 19 women of diverse racial, ethnic, religious and socio-economic backgrounds, age and sexual orientation whom are appointed by state officials. The MCSW is empowered to study, review and report on the status of women in the Commonwealth; inform leaders of business, education, healthcare, state and local governments and the communications media of issues pertaining to women; serve as a clearinghouse for information on issues pertaining to women; identify and recommend qualified women for appointive positions at all levels of government, including boards and commissions; and promote and facilitate collaboration among local women's commissions and among women's organizations in the state.

Based on statewide public hearings, the Commission has established two top priorities: Violence Against Women and Childcare. In response to these concerns, the Commission has established task forces, endorsed legislation, participated and provided assistance in conferences and forums and has collaborated with community organizations confronting issues of sexual assault, domestic violence, early childhood education and the inequitable wages for childcare workers.

How to Use the Directory

This directory is intended to inform and help you in the early stages of seeking an appointment to a state board or commission. Listings are organized alphabetically by organization. Information provided for each board or commission includes the appointing authority, the number of appointments per organization, enabling legislation and contact information. Appointments are made by the Governor, the State Legislature, or state agency officials.

Getting Started

When you have identified a board or commission that interests you, use the text of the enabling law to learn more about specific duties of the organization and the role you would play if appointed. You can locate this information on the Massachusetts government portal at: www.state.ma.us/legis/laws/mgl/mgllink.htm. Enter the chapter and section listed in the directory and this will produce a summary of the purpose and duties of the organization. As the descriptions within the general laws range in detail, you may want to contact the office of the organization of your choice at the number provided to request material on the board or commission in which you are interested, or find out about any meetings that you may attend. It may also be possible to contact present commissioners or board members in order to get a better sense of what is involved in the work of the organization.

If you find that the organization in which you are interested has been recognized by an executive order, it is best to contact the office that has the responsibility of appointing commissioners or board members for more information. You may also visit the Massachusetts State Library for the actual executive order document, which contains a thorough description of the organization's purpose.

Getting Appointed

If you are interested in being appointed to a commission or board, contact your local representative or senator for a written or verbal recommendation that can be sent to the appointing authority, or contact the appointing authority directly to express your interest in the board or commission of your choice. The following section provides contact information for all the appointing authorities listed.

The appointment process may take a long time. Sometimes, the organization may be fully staffed, or you may be competing with several candidates for an appointment. It is best to have several options in mind.

Most state boards and commissions do not provide compensation for participation. However, some organizations may reimburse travel expenses, provide a small stipend or serve an occasional meal during a meeting.

Requirements vary and depend on the organization. Certain boards and commissions may have a specific criterion for appointments, such as special knowledge of an issue, while others may not. It is always best to contact the board or commission in question in order to verify the requirements for being appointed before applying for a position.

The Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women hopes you find this directory useful and that you are inspired to learn more about one or more of our many state boards and commissions and how you can serve.

Good Luck! If there is any way the Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women can assist you in this process, do not hesitate to contact us at 617-626-6520.
